But for many of my neurological patients, music is even more — it can provide access, even when no medication can, to movement, to speech, to life. For them, music is not a luxury, but a necessity." This quote from the renowned neurologist Oliver Sacks sums up both our society's general attitude toward music (that it is just a sweet treat), and the importance of music to our health and our brains. Learn about the latest research on how music affects speech, movement and thinking, and improves our physical and mental health.
